MICHAEL HOWARD

Michael Howard is an Associate Attorney at Nochumson P.C., where he focuses his practice on land use, zoning, and real estate-related litigation matters. His work includes matters involving zoning and land development approvals, tax assessment appeals, and disputes concerning the ownership, use, and development of real property.

Michael joined Nochumson P.C. as an Associate Attorney in September 2026 after previously serving as an intern with the firm while attending law school. Through his experience with the firm, he developed familiarity with a range of land use, zoning, and real estate matters, including variances, special exceptions, subdivisions, proceedings before municipal boards and agencies, and litigation involving property-related disputes.

Before entering the legal profession, he worked as a Distribution Analyst with M&T Bank from 2020 through 2024. His experience in the financial services industry strengthened his analytical and problem-solving skills and provided him with insight into the practical challenges faced by businesses and individuals.

Michael earned his J.D. from the Thomas R. Kline School of Law at Drexel University in 2026 and his B.A. from Syracuse University in 2019. While in law school, he participated in several pro bono and community service initiatives, including assisting individuals seeking United States citizenship through Philadelphia Citizenship Day programs. He also volunteered in programs that helped Philadelphia residents prepare essential estate planning documents, including wills, financial powers of attorney, and healthcare powers of attorney.

A lifelong resident of the Greater Philadelphia region, Michael was raised in Ambler, Pennsylvania, and has strong ties to the communities served by the firm. He is passionate about helping clients navigate complex legal issues with clarity, responsiveness, and a practical approach designed to make the legal process more manageable and less intimidating.

Outside of the office, Michael enjoys following Philadelphia sports, fitness training, running, cooking, music production, and spending time with his two cats, Pebbles and Bella. A dedicated Philadelphia sports fan, he has attended Eagles games with his father for more than a decade and is a longtime supporter of the Phillies and 76ers.
